AID FOR a GOOD CATSE.—In Newport, Ky., is a man named Wm. S. Bailey, who for seven years has maintained there an Anti-Slavery journal in the face of the most formidable opposition. He has suffered assaults upon his person, successfully defended blungelf against libel suits, and lost by an incendiary fire and various persecutions over ten thousand dollars, not reckoning the hard labor of himself and family. In the struggle against those who were determined to destroy his paper, he has lost his homestoad, which he is anxious to redeem. And in order to put his office in good condition he needs a few hundred dollars to pay up obligations already incurred. His paper, The Newport News, is able, entirely fearless, thorougly Anti-Slavery, and well conducted in all respects. Doubtless it will live, but after so many years of heroic work the question ought not to be left in doubt.

Cassius M. Clay says:

To all to whom these presents shall come: Wm. S. Bailey of The Newport News, Newport, Kentucky, has made great pecuniary sacrifices in the cause of our common liberties; and is still making sacrifices. His paper, daily and weekly, is doing good service in Kentucky, and encouraging others in all the Slave States to do the same. All the friends of the Slave States to do the same. All the friends of the Republican cause would do well to aid him; as a little meany from each one would place his paper on a basis of stability and usefulness.
